

Could've, should've, would've

A free TEFL lesson plan from www.jamiekeddie.com

There are two parts to this file:

- Part 1: Ideas for using the could've, should've, would've slideshow in the classroom (pages 2 and 3). You might want to print these off.
- Part 2: The slide show (pages 4 to 15). If you put this whole file onto a memory stick, you will be able to transfer it onto a computer in your school and show the slideshow to your learners.

Ideas for using the could've, should've, would've slideshow in class

Idea 1: Dictation

Dictate the book titles to your learners and then allow them to correct what they have written by showing them the slideshow.

- *All the ways we could have met
- I could have danced all night
- It could have been worse
- How Hitler could have won World War II
- 10 things my mother should have told me
- *The man I should have married
- The manual that should have come with your body
- Wrong: The biggest mistakes and miscalculations ever made by people who should have known better
- Rembrandt would have loved you
- I would have loved him if I had not killed him
- *The Christian president: What Jesus would have done
- Things you would have learned if you'd listened

Idea 2: Guess about the book

Give out the list of book titles but don't let your students see the covers at this stage. For each one they should guess:

- What genre the book belongs to (fiction, non-fiction, romance novel, self-help, etc)
- What the book is about
- Who it is aimed at Once decisions have been made, allow your students to see the images. The covers themselves will usually give away the information they have been looking for.

Idea 3: Consensus translations

For monolingual classes, show your students the slideshow and get them to come to a consensus translation for each title. All 12 titles should be written down in their own language (no English should be written at this stage). Then, in the absence of the slideshow, your learners should attempt to translate the titles back into English.

Idea 4: Drilling and gap fill

Use the slideshow to drill the target language. In other words, get your students to repeat the book titles after you. Follow this up with the gap fill exercise on the next page.

Fill in the gaps:

All the ways we _____

I _____ all night

It _____ worse

How Hitler _____ World War II

10 things my mother _____ me

The man I _____

The manual that _____ with your body

Wrong: The biggest mistakes and miscalculations ever made by people who _____ better

Rembrandt _____ you

I _____ him if I had not killed him

The Christian president: What Jesus _____

Things you _____ if you'd listened
